Title: Gender and CDIO: The Role of Instructors in Facilitating Inclusive Teamwork

Abstract: Teamwork is increasingly seen as an important component of engineering education programmes. Yet, prior research has shown that there are numerous ways in which teamwork is gendered, and can lead to negative experiences for women students. This keynote address discusses that body of work and presents interview findings on what and how engineering professors think about gender and teamwork. Recommendations for making teamwork components of CDIO more gender-inclusive will be discussed.
